Public And Businesses Urged To Redouble COVID Safety Efforts

The NSW Government has called on individuals and businesses to redouble efforts to stop COVID-19 from spreading.

COVID-safe compliance measures already enforced for pubs now also apply to restaurants, bars, cafes, clubs, breweries and cellar doors including limiting group bookings to 10, mandatory COVID-safe plans and registration as a COVID-safe business, and recording contact details of all patrons.

Although this is not enforced by a Public Health Order at this time, NSW Health are asking all people to reconsider and limit non-essential activities where possible.

Tourism operators must implement their COVID-safety plan to ensure the health and safety of their customers and employees, and may continue to accept customers at this time. Weddings and corporate events are now limited to 150 people - subject to being able to accommodate one person per four square metres. Again, venues must be registered as a COVID-safe business. NSW Health's resources to support tourism businesses are still available - download the social media assets, posters, email banners and door hangers to advise guests about what to do if they become unwell.
